5 Must-See Shows in Los Angeles

BY SCOTT INDRISEK | FEBRUARY 03, 2016

Thomas Kovachevich at Tif Sigfrids, through February 6 (1507 Wilcox Avenue)

What Corten steel is to Richard Serra, black corrugated plastic is to Kovachevich. That might sound like a limp rallying cry, but you'd be surprised how this lo-fi material can perform when cut and arrayed into properly conceived constructions. In some pieces it becomes an inky monochrome, a 99-cent-store Ad Reinhardt. Elsewhere, it is sliced into circles, guillotine-blade wedges, or lightning bolts that are affixed to the wall or dangle from cords like geometric mobiles.
